Course: BSc(Hons) Applied Software Development (UI310)
Module: Software Architecture

This module complements the Software Services module by looking at systems as a whole and focusing on developing, as opposed to using, technologies such as API and libraries. Students will be introduced to different ways to build software applications using a variety of design architectures. This module will enable students to break down problems into components and critically think about the approach to security.